FOREWORD

IN THE STILL, TRANQUIL POOL OF TODAY ARE REFLECTED THE MYRIAD ACTIVITIES AND EVER-CHANGING LIFE OF APACHELAND. A RIPPLE BREAKS THE SURFACE; THE IMAGE IS GONE, AND ITS PLACE IS TAKEN BY A DIFFERENT PICTURE. IN THE "APACHE" WE HAVE TRIED TO CATCH A FEW REFLECTIONS, TO PRESERVE FOR YOU THE SPIRIT, THE THROBBING VITALITY, OF THIS YEAR « « « « IN YOUR LIVES. » » » »

DEDICATION

IN THIS, THE DECENNIAL YEAR OF THE COLLEGE AND THE CENTENNIAL YEAR OF THE STATE, WE DEDICATE THIS BOOK TO THE FAR-SIGHTED CITIZENS WHOSE LOFTY AMBITION AND CONSCIENTIOUS EFFORTS HAVE RESULTED IN THE ESTABLISHMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF TYLER JUNIOR COLLEGE.

THEY ENVISIONED AN INSTITUTION WHOSE STANDARDS AND ACHIEVEMENTS WOULD PERPETUATE THE HIGH IDEALISM AND RUGGED SELF-SUFFICIENCY OF THOSE PIONEERS WHO FOUNDED OUR GREAT STATE.

THIS VISION HAS COME TO PASS. TODAY THE FRUIT OF THEIR LABOR IS EVIDENT IN THE WIDE RENOWN AND UNIVERSAL ESTEEM IN WHICH THE SCHOOL IS HELD.

DEAN OF WOMEN

No school can be better than its administrative officers. Tyler Junior College has an unusually capable corps of these essential officials. It is their task to assure the continued smooth functioning of the entire school, and they labor unceasingly to perform their duties in a manner that will reflect credit on the institution. As a result of their endeavors the College has reached a high scholastic standard, and has attained state-wide recognition.

THE OATH OF THE APACHES

As a member of the Apache Tribe of Tyler Junior College, I pledge myself ever to cherish and uphold the established traditions, the high ideals, and the sacred honor of Apacheland.

I will endeavor to transmit to future Apaches the significance of the Tribal Totem, to give to them the serene glory of the Black and Gold, and to pass to them the valiant spirit that is the embodiment of Apacheland, even as these things were given into my keeping.

THE TOTEM POLE

The purpose of this exposition is to make all Apaches more cognizant of the true meanings of the figures on the Apache Totem Pole, which adorns the Tyler Junior College library.

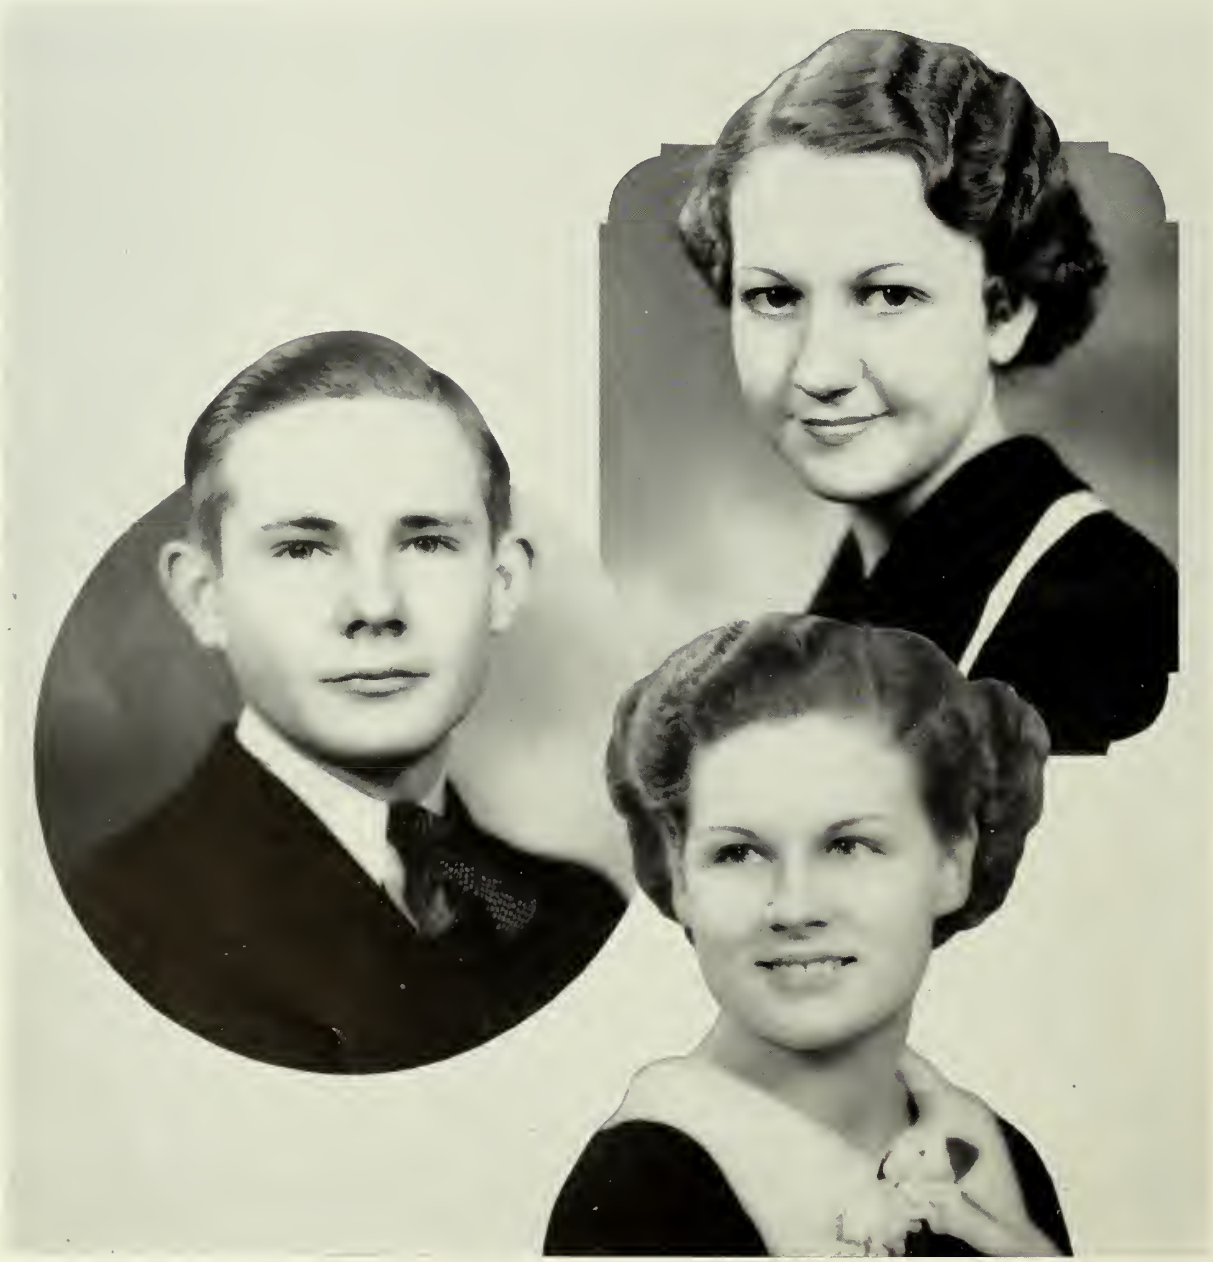

This pole is not a pole, but a long round piece of tin, with a base made of wood. Now every part of the pole is supposed to represent something, but some of its symbols are vague in meaning to many dwellers of Apacheland. The entire pole is painted a brilliant gold, and the figures are in solid black. The first layer on the staff is of little fish, and they are commonly reported to be Freshmen. These fish are swimming around and around, as Freshmen are prone to do. Immediately above these piscatorial specimens is the likeness of an ancient squaw, carrying a bundle on her back in the fashion of a modern tramp. The letters A. K. K. identify this figure, and with bent back and sore feet, she looks like most of the A. K. K. members. Above the squaw is a row of dumbells that some claim are the Sophomores, but in reality they represent the Engineers' Club. Surmounting the dumbells is the Las Mascaras division. This organization is shown as chasing deer, while the picture of the Indian attempting to shoot a bull (buffalo) is unmistakably the Pre-Law Club. The various sports of the College are put above these pictures, with the basketball claiming the most prominent position. The next feature to greet the eye is that of two old Indians in a huddle. Someone believed that this was the classes in session, but it looks to me like the Dean and the Registrar discussing some very important business concerning the College. The largest drawing on the pole is that of the Alcalde or Big Chief. This is the Dean of the College, although Mr. Jenkins does not have the exact profile of the Indian on the pole. Above his picture is a row of braves trying to scalp each other. They are as intent on slaying their neighbors as their live brothers are on winning a "matching" contest. The crowning glory of the pole (which is not a pole at all) is the parade of warriors around the summit. These Apaches have two feathers in their headdresses, and these represent two years of work completed in the Tyler Junior College. The completion of these two years of work and play has truly been "a feather in their caps."

MR. POSTON'S LAMENT

When I was young, and in my prime,
I used to tell jokes all the time.
But now that I am growing old,
There are no jokes I have not told.

I try to enliven my class with wit,
As before me each day they glumly sit.
But alas for me and my bag of tricks,
They will always remain a group of hicks.

INTERVIEW WITH AN ENGLISH LITERATURE STUDENT

We've scanned the lines, how oft no one knows.
From that Beowulf drivel through Milton's prose.
We've read and read, and wrote and wrote,
(From forty-four authors we can quote.)

If we finally see what the study is about
We will receive the "benefit of the doubt."
But there's a joker in this you see,
For there is no doubt, believe you me!

If you would live for many years,
And avoid strife and perhaps tears,
You'll drop English Lit. as quick as you can
And live to be a much happier man.

SOPHOMORES TRIUMPH IN SOUP BOWL ACTIVITIES

In a scorching battle waged today at the high school athletic field, the Tyler Junior College Sophomores defeated the Freshmen by a score of 20 to 6. The fact that the Sophomores had only nine men did not hinder them in the least, nor did the fact that the Freshmen used twelve players for the first fifteen minutes of the game.

The ice was broken, figuratively speaking, when a Freshman back was tackled behind his own goal line. Score: Sophomores, 2; Freshmen, 0. Forty-three plays later the quarterback, halfback, fullback of the Sophomore team heaved a rainbow pass to a teammate, who scampered for a touchdown. The pass, Burton to Bickley, was good for twenty-six yards. But the Freshmen quickly retaliated with a series of short passes that culminated with a touchdown by Perdue. Score: Sophomores, 8; Freshmen, 6.

Taking the ball on a tricky quadruple reverse that had the entire membership of both teams frantically searching for the pigskin, "Rip" Goforth tore around left end for a first down on the Freshmen's twenty-three yard line. On the next play Burton ran down the sideline for another counter. Score: Sophomores, 14; Freshmen, 6.

While crowds cheered wildly, the battle raged on an even footing for the next few minutes. Burton put the game on ice by snaring a pass and running for another touchdown with only eight men for interference. The game was concluded shortly afterwards because neither team had brought water wings. We wish to take this opportunity to correct an error that was made in a previous report of the contest. It was alleged that Hankerson caught a hot pass in the flat, but in reality he was caught by a hot pass and knocked flat.

The statistics on the game show that the Freshmen made thirty-three first downs, while the Sophomores had to be content with only twenty-seven. The Freshmen kicked four times for an average of five yards per punt. The Sophomores kicked continuously, but it did not get them anywhere. An interesting side note on the battle is the training of Goforth for the event. He is said to have run home from school every day to preserve his wind. (He is willing to sell the secret of his success to anyone, if they will direct their inquiries to "Rip" Goforth, Overton, Texas.)

After the game a reporter asked Smoky Erwin (often called "The Idle of the School") if he thought the game was a hard one. Mr. Erwin said, "In speaking for the Freshmen let me say that all we want is another chance." Sophomore Dave Gilley is reputed to have remarked that the fame he derived from the encounter would be sure to land him in some of the All-American selections, but that as a whole the game was "As easy as falling asleep in English class."

The game proved nothing, but all of the players hope it will become an annual custom. (Ed. Note—No line-ups were given because of the brawls precipitated by arguments over who was to play what.)

Nell Morris: "Why anyone knows that winter is coming when it begins to get later earlier."

Bill Wood: "Have you heard the story of the man who carried a quart of milk home in a paper sack?"

Edwin Rasco: "No, what is the story?"

Bill Wood: "It hasn't leaked out yet."

Dave Gilley: "Has Arthur Garrison been in this school very long?"

Ralph Bickley: "I'll say he has. He cut his teeth on the cafeteria silverware!"

James Shahan: "Do you know why they build the pig pens on the south side of the house in Whitehouse?"

Robert Blake: "No, why do they?"

James Shahan: "To keep the pigs in."

CLASSROOM CLASSICS

"Mammals in the Orchard" is a short story by O. Henry.

Burr claimed that Hamilton had made some very desultory remarks about him.

The sale of intoxicated liquor is forbidden in Texas.

Mamie Edwards: "No, was there a fire?"

Louise: "Of course not, but the place was suddenly plunged into complete light!"

Fannie Fridkin: "If you were me would you take out insurance?"

Dorma Odom: "Not on your life."

Jerry Walters: "How did you come out in the pie eating contest?"

Bernice Gullick: "Let me have a look at it."

Walter Baer: "Oh, I've already disposed of it. Luckily, the cashier at the high school cafeteria took it."

Cary Head: "Did you make the basketball team?"

Ben Nasits: "Nope, they already had one."

Frances Turman: "While Miss Henderson was coming to school this morning a brick hit the radiator of her car. What do you think of that?"

Morris Goforth: "Very poor shot."

John Campbell: "Er, Mr. Henderson, the barometer in the biology class has fallen."

Mr. J. C. Henderson: "How far?"

John Campbell: "Well, offhand I would say about five feet."

APACHE Editor: "Well, what has the Girls' Forum done this year?"

Dorothy Brookshire: "Nothing."

APACHE Editor: "Then keep your write-up down to 5,000 words."

Miss Mary Henderson: "Mr. Goforth, what is the definition of economics?"

Morris Goforth (aroused out of a deep sleep): "Ah, ah, oh yeah, economics is the study of Scotch civics."

Mr. Poston: "How were your grades this semester?"

Smoky Erwin: "Jules Verne."

Mr. Poston: "I don't quite understand."

Smoky Erwin: "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the 'C.'"

Gus Blair: "I think that is carrying a celebration too far."

Mr. Henderson: "Name the constituents of quartz."
Louise Herring: "Pints."

FRESHMAN PHILOSOPHY

The more you study,
The more you know.
The more you know,
The more you forget.
The more you forget,
The less you know,
So why study?

Bill Niblack: "What is that terrible odor around the postoffice?"
James Oliver: "Must be the dead letters."

A writer has remarked that it was always a good policy to be kind to insects. We are always glad to get an opportunity to pat a mosquito on the back.

Eloise Tucker: "Is that new player very intelligent?"
James Shahan: "No, why that fellow is so dumb that he thinks a double dribble is a form of ice cream."

1. School is the place for study. (All Phi Theta Kappas) . . . 2. Kelly and Sawyer demonstrate the latest in—well—school spirit? . . . 3. Gus and Garrison. . . . 4. A happy (who said sappy?) group . . . 5. Apparently contented . . . 6. Watching the birdie . . . 7. Sun grins . . . No tests today, their smiles will stay . . .

JOKES

Walter Reneau: "Say, your argument with your girl last night was most amusing"

Bill Nettles: "Wasn't it, though? And when she threw that ax at me I thought I'd split."

Any Assembly Speaker: "My watch has stopped. How long have I been speaking?"

Freshman From Rear of Room: "Don't worry, pal, there's a calendar in the Registrar's office."

Talmadge Carter (at concert): "What is that book the conductor is always looking at?"

Pearl Key: "That's the score of the overture."

Talmadge Carter: "Oh, really, who's winning?"

James Hankerson: "Here's a good joke. You'd better hand me the shears?"

Bill Wood: "Yeah, to trim the whiskers on it."

Garageman's motto: "Wrecks mark the spot."

Steve Potts: "We're lost! This is one hunting trip we'll not return from."

Walker Wilson: "Aw, don't worry, we'll just shoot some more deer and the game warden will find us."

Dorothy Klein: "Aren't telephones great time savers?"

Fannie Fridkin: "Well, it depends upon who you are calling?"

Where there's smoke there's a kitchenette.

J. C. Kelly: "Is it true your sister is a garrulous girl?"

Marjorie Sadler: "Is she! Why if I went suddenly dumb she wouldn't find it our for a week."

Walter Baer: "I notice that T. J. C. now boasts a choral club."

Richard Rockwell: "No, we don't boast of it."

"Now I ax you," said the Apache, as he raised his tomahawk above the head of a victim.

THE APACHE

THE most fearless fighter in America is gone. In his stead is a band of shiftless half-breeds, who care nothing for the traditions of their ancestors. But at one time the Apache was feared throughout the United States, and he held sway over a domain that stretched from Gila Bend to the Paso Del Norte, and from Taos to Durango. The ultimate origin of this hardy race is lost in the dim past, but he must have surely come after his neighbor, the Mojave, for the coming of the Apaches is told in the legends of the older desert races. Perhaps the utter fearlessness of this warlike race was responsible for the destruction of the famous Pueblo Bonito, but scientists are unable to state this fact definitely. Where the Apache roamed, he left his mark, usually in slaughtered cattle and murdered Indians; and in his warlike life he left an imperishable mark on the history of the West.

The Apache's home life was Spartan in rudeness and simplicity. Trained from his youth in the stern path of warfare, the home fires of his fathers did not have a great influence on the younger Apache. It was the duty of the men to procure food, and hunting of all kinds occupied a large part of the time of these people. In direct contrast to the practice of many uncivilized tribes, the Apache girls had the utmost freedom in choosing a husband. They were not obliged to marry a man that they did not care for, and if they wanted to they could remain spinsters. All of the household equipment of the Apaches was designed to give a maximum of portability, for they were semi-nomadic in their habits.

Their religion consisted of two constantly warring forces. The Good Spirit was conceded ultimate victory over the Evil Spirit, but the Evil Spirit was ever present in daily life, and it was necessary to procure charms to insure the continued good health of every individual. No one questioned the power of the medicine men, for they were always brave warriors in their own right. This religion took no notice of the true meaning of brotherly love and friendship. It was confined to the cold and stern realities of life.

A friend for subtle craftiness, the Apache was unsurpassed in his ability to trail enemies, and his equal in setting ambushes has never been found. When allowed to fight in his own way was a master strategist, and his methods of warfare made him ever feared by the white men. The Apache warriors made long forays on their wiry horses, and their marches seem incredible to the modern soldier. The amenities of hostage taking were unknown to Apaches, and the best that a captive could hope for was as quick and painless a death as possible. The cruelty of these savages knew no bounds, for they loved to torture anyone luckless enough to fall into their hands.

The most famous Apache chief was Geronimo. He was a living personification of all the greed and hate in the Apache's soul. In conjunction with the Comanches this chief was the scourge of the West, and his demise was hailed with joy by the white men.

Although he has passed on, the Apache will continue to exist as the perfect example of a savage warrior.

PRE-LAW CLUB

RICHARD ROCKWELL President
BILL WOOD Vice-President
BERNICE GULLICK Secretary

With an active and representative membership, and a capable group of officers, the Pre-Law Club was one of the most outstanding organizations in the College during the year.

Organized to promote interest in legal knowledge by students who aspire to become lawyers, the club invites each year several speakers to address the members. During the past year the speakers have been men of exceptionally high ability and reputation. Mr. Ralph Shank was one of the guests, as was Mr. Israel Smith. Generously giving some of his valuable time, Judge Nat Brooks, of the Special District Court, gave a highly informative and instructive lecture upon the law as a profession, and pointed out some of the essential requisites for a good lawyer. Mr. H. E. Jenkins is the sponsor of the club.

LAS MASCARAS

After presenting "Mansions" in the district play contest held in Jacksonville and winning second place, Las Mascaras, in the spring semester, gave two performances of "Death Takes a Holiday." The initial production for the 1935-1936 season was "The Romantic Age."

The officers for this year are Richard Rockwell, President; Margaret Anne Smith, Vice-President; Dorothy Brookshire, Secretary; Cary Head, Treasurer. Miss Mildred Howell is the sponsor.

The Engineers' Club of Tyler Junior College is one of the most popular organizations in the school. The members are boys of the highest personal character, and are known for their scholastic ability. The club has several field trips each year to points of interest in East Texas.

Mr. E. A. Lawver is the faculty sponsor of the club.

LITERARY WORKSHOP

MARGARET ANNE SMITH President
ELIZABETH CAMPBELL Vice-President
LOUISE HERRING Secretary

Since this year is the Centennial of Texas, the Literary Workshop of the College has taken as its purpose for the year the study of Texas and her writers. In addition to acquiring a fuller appreciation of the rich lore and traditions of our great State, the members hope to awaken in themselves a part of the creative ability that Texas writers possess in such great measure.

The Girls' Forum of Tyler is composed of High School and Junior College girls. Since its establishment in 1931 this organization has become one of the most noteworthy clubs in the school.

In the constitution adopted in 1931, the purpose of the Girls' Forum is stated as follows: "Through Congenial activity we aim to foster the development of our better selves in order to become better members of society." Due to the cooperative spirit fostered in the Girls' Forum, any unfriendly rivalries among school clubs have been eliminated.

The executive board, consisting of the officers and sponsors of the Girls' Forum and the presidents of the member clubs, is the administrative body of the organization. On November 1, 1932, the club became a member of the Federated Clubs.

To climax a most successful season the Girls' Forum presented Richard Halliburton, whose lecture was one of the outstanding literary events of the year.

In Retrospect

The past school year has been one of varied events. It is gone, passed on in the remorseless parade of time, but we hope that in this APACHE we have enshrined a part of it for the future. When, in pensive mood, we are able to look back upon this year, let us see it with a benignant and tolerant attitude. Allow the intervening years to weave an aura of pleasant recollection about the happenings of '35 and '36.

The APACHE staff hopes that you will enjoy this book to the fullest extent. If you have any complaints to make, if your name was misspelled, or left out, do not look for the Editor or Business Manager, for they are currently packing pieces of heavy ordnance that shoot buckshot all day and throw rocks all night. And in conclusion, we say that if any Bronx cheers are to be mingled with the cries of approbation, please deliver them in person to

THE TEAM

RUSHING, WALTERS, GILLEY, SHAHAN, GILBERT

BASKETBALL

Richard Rushing, Jr., displayed a truly fine brand of basketball throughout the entire season. He performed the most difficult duties with a determination that was usually rewarded with success. As a regular forward he was credited with a total of 47 points in conference games during the season.

Jerry Walters was one of the Apaches chosen as an All-Conference player. A majority of the coaches named him as a forward on the mythical district team. His tremendous speed, coupled with an uncanny ability to handle the ball, made him a very dangerous player. With a knack of eluding other men, he sunk enough tallies to place him second on the All-Conference scoring list. His total for the year was 93 points.

David Gilley was first string Apache guard this year. He was selected to fill one of the guard posts on the All-Conference team. A balance wheel for the entire team, his sterling defensive work made him a formidable opponent. Dave was also well up on the scoring list with a total of 69 points.

James Shahan captained the 1936 edition of the Tyler Junior College Apaches. He was unanimous choice for the other guard position on the All-Conference. James' work as a floor man was unsurpassed, and his feat of holding a highly touted opponent to a scoreless evening, while scoring twelve points himself, will not be soon forgotten. During the season he amassed a total of 72 points in conference games.

BASKETBALL SQUAD

Loy Gilbert was the regular Apache center. Illness forced him to be absent from a few games, but in the majority of the encounters he played the entire game. With sufficient height to command the tip-off in most cases, he not only played an excellent game at center, but during the year accounted for 54 points, many of which came at crucial times.

Among the reserves Harris Burton, Arthur Garrison, and Burns Tilton deserve special mention. All of the players on the squad saw service during the year, and their work reflected credit on the team and on the school. The members of this year's squad who will probably return are Loy Gilbert, Jerry Walters, Richard Rushing, Burns Tilton, Harris Burton, and W. C. Hoganson.

The Apaches finished second in the district race this year. The Jacksonville Baptist College was first with nine wins and three losses. The Apaches had eight wins and four losses.

Mr. George Foltz, the basketball coach, had this year the difficult task of molding a team from partially untried material. Mr. Foltz is a great favorite with the players and with the student body, for he has the unswerving faith and untiring patience that every successful coach must have.
